ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method is provided for determining flow rates of fluid in a well. The system and method utilize temperature measurements and a modeling technique that enable the determination of flow rates from one or more well zones via the temperature data.